Burra Heritage Cottages are National Treasures!

Constructed in 1856 by James and Emma Tiver they are listed on the Register of State Heritage Items

These row cottages are National treasures.

Constructed in 1856 by James and Emma Tiver they are listed on the Register of State Heritage Items, the Register of the National Estate and are regarded as unique examples of Cornish/British architecture. The cottages have been lovingly restored and are now perfect for bed and breakfast accommodation for couples, families or groups of friends. Winners of two regional tourism awards as well as the 1995 St George Bank/National Trust Conservation Award in South Australia, they offer an opportunity to experience a genuine heritage cottage with modern comforts or, as one person wrote in the visitors' book "a journey to the past, travelling first class".
