Description:

Large gabled residence of random coursed rubble, solid stone flat arches to multi-paned casement windows, scalloped gable barge and verandah fascia, raked verandah roof.

Built for the merchant George Ormerod. Sold in 1872, with the shipping business, to the John Grices. Transferred with this firm to Hutchison and Dunn. Andrew Dunn lived there till his death in 1901, after the collapse of the family fortune. Miss Alexandrina Hutchison later bequeathed it to the Church of England, who used it as a rectory. Returned to private ownership in 1939.
