HERITAGE SIGNIFICANCE

Description:

History:
This building, designed by Port Pirie architect, J. Firmin Jenkins (responsible for several other buildings in the town) was completed in 1914 as the Port Pirie office for the Adelaide Steamship Company. Located in close proximity to the wharfs like the Howard Smith building in Florence Street, epitomises the rise in significance of Pirie as a port.

Significance:
Associated with the Adelaide Steamship Company and located in the vicinity of the wharfs. Condition and integrity good.

HERITAGE SIGNIFICANCE

Description:
Two storey stone construction, now rendered. Tiles to lower portion of ground floor. 1930s balcony addition with rendered balustrading and pillars with brick bases. Dentil details to tops of pillars. Parapet with moulded courses and signage. Brick rendered chimneys. Glazed entrance doors. Decorated ground floor windows with horizontal glazing bars. Multi-paned double hung sash windows to first floor. Air conditioning units in some windows.

History:
Built in 1874, opened as Howe’s Hotel January 1875–1892. James Henderson Howe was first licensee. The building was taken over by J. G. Lewis, a friend of Howe’s, who had set up a tin smith business in the town. The building has undergone extensive modification since it was built, including the addition of the Assembly Room and linking rooms to the rear and the 1930s balcony and verandah. In 1876 the first Port Pirie City Council meeting was held in the cellar. In 1892 the name was changed to the International Hotel, reflecting Port Pirie’s increasing international trade.

Significance:
Located opposite the wharfs and the smelters, both good sources of trade.

HERITAGE SIGNIFICANCE

Description:
Random coursed stone single storey building with front facade in three sections. Gabled parapet with central Dutch gable. Stucco finials to each gable. Detailed sculptured animal heads (sheep, cow and pig) decorate the three sections of the parapet. 'Established 1864' embossed in parapet. Recessed shopfronts with cast iron lace decoration above. Bullnosed verandah with timber dentils to fascia is in poor condition.

History:
Captain Richard Sampson first founded a butchering business in Cornwall in 1864. Nine years later he came to South Australia and established a business in Gladstone. In partnership with Mr John Close (who had a business in Laura), Sampson set up a butcher shop in Port Pirie in 1887. The premises in Ellen Street was fitted out with all the latest appliances—gas engine, cold storage etc. The company supplied the shipping industry (there was apparently a tunnel connecting the shop with the wharf running under Ellen Street) and delivered to all parts of the town. The building is now owned by the National Trust.

Significance:
Detailing on the parapet is unusual. The shop catered to both local and shipping trade and contributes to the townscape.

HERITAGE SIGNIFICANCE

Description:
Random coursed stone two storey building with rendered quoins and surrounds. Arched windows to ground floor. Currently in process of extensive renovation, particularly to first floor. Work includes complete reconstruction of verandah and balcony.

History:
Opened in 1878 by Thomas Magor who owned it until 1885. Strategically placed to entice travellers from the train where it stopped in the main street. H. E. Duncan and his wife were licensees of the hotel for many years. The hotel especially catered for commercial travellers, with 40 rooms, 3 of which were set aside as sample rooms. Six underground rooms were reserved for summer use. During construction the contractor used the underground section to collect rainwater to avoid paying for water from the town's supply. The hotel had an observatory from which a pipe led directly to the bar below for supply of refreshment. Known as the Royal Exchange Hotel 1878; Royal Hotel 1879-1881, known again as the Royal Exchange 1882. The 12 foot wide balcony was at one time a popular location for open air civic, political and union gatherings.

Significance:
As an early hotel in Port Pirie, its integrity compromised by recent restoration work. The building forms a prominent landmark along Ellen Street.

HERITAGE SIGNIFICANCE

Description:
Two storey English bond brick building in Gothic style. Recessed shopfronts with timber detailing. Raked return verandah with timber posts. Ornate gables and parapet with wrought iron finials. Dentils under cornice. Corrugated galvanised iron roof. Windows formerly had canopies and string course has been removed. Double hung sash windows to first floor with multi-paned top sections.

History:
This building, designed by the prolific Port Pirie architect J. Firmin Jenkins was constructed at the turn of the century and accordingly named in commemoration of the Federation of the nation. Delano's owned the property in 1902 and later in the mid 1920s was leased for a time to the well established merchant firm of G. & R. Wills. At one stage the building contained Petman’s Menswear (hence the ornate ‘P’ on shopfront windows).

Significance:
Constructed in the early 1900s and named in commemoration of the Federation of Australia, this building in the Gothic style forms an unusual architectural element in the town. The shopfronts are of considerable significance.

HERITAGE SIGNIFICANCE

Description:
Two storey stone and brick building with observatory tower. Ornate rendered parapet and balustrade. Corrugated galvanized iron roof. Balcony and verandah elaborately decorated with gablet and cast iron lace brackets and balustrading.

History:
B. J. Knight came to Port Pirie in 1876 and opened a wine and spirit business in Ellen Street. In 1890 he erected a large aeral water and cordial factory and in 1896 bought Nash's brewery in Solomontown. In 1904 he built the Family Hotel on his proper in Ellen Street and the wine and spirit store moved to Norman Street. Described as 'replete with every convenience and generally admitted to be one of the best conducted in the state (SA Year Book, 1909, p. 5347). The hotel was the last to be built in Ellen Street.

Significance:
Association with B. J. Knight, provider of refreshment to Port Pirie. The quality and condition of the facade is outstanding. Of the few hotels to remain relatively unscathed.

Description:
Extensive alterations to shopfronts, including modern metal cladding have reduced the integrity of the building. Original first floor facades may be present beneath modern cladding.

History:
The original two storey building was built in 1880 by a local contractor, Mr. Scotcher, and the extension to Norman Street (a saddlery shop) in 1889. The Norman Street building was completed in 1901 and a drapery store was built in 1917.

Significance:
Little or no significance apart from association with Prests.

Description:

History:

First owners were John Seymour Lewis and Leonard Charles Wheaton Lewis. The architect was J. F. Jenkins, builder J. L. Roach stonework; T. H. Scorington, carpenter; J. G. Lewis & Son, framework. This firm established a business in Port Pirie 1877. Originally had premises in Alexander Street. In 1932 new premises were built in Ellen Street. Business commenced with galvanised ironwork and later expanded to making water tanks, plumbing fittings, roofing installation and fabrication of ironwork generally. Over 20 men were employed in the workshops and were involved on many of the larger buildings in the town. The business was closed in 1981.

Significance:

Streetscape value. Association with a well known and long established hardware firm.

HERITAGE SIGNIFICANCE

Description:
Two storeyed rendered stone building with asbestos sheet roof. Simple cantilevered verandah. Double hung sash windows.

History:
Tenders to erect a hotel were requested by William Knapman of the White Horse Cellars, Port Adelaide, in December 1872. Knapman had purchased Allotment 35 (sited strategically across Ellen Street from the busy Galloway's wharf) from C. B. Young. The hotel was under construction in March 1873. The single storey 13 roomed Port Pirie Hotel was one of the first stone buildings in the town. Knapman applied for a publican's licence in the name of his son-in-law Samuel Wills (1873-1877). The hotel was used as a venue for public meetings and hearings of the local court. A second storey has been added to the building.

Significance:
Although of low integrity, the building was the first hotel and one of the early stone buildings to be erected in Port Pirie.

Description:
Rendered brick and concrete building with gabled roof clad with corrugated galvanised iron.

History:
After the 1916 increase in the daily wage rate, workers at the BHAS site complained that their increase would soon be swallowed up by increases in prices at the local stores. Gerald Musson proposed that a price controlled retail store be set up to keep the BHAS workers content. The company agreed and the BHAS Cooperative Council was created. Its first major role was to establish and oversee a cooperative store. This opened in May 1918 and operated successfully until February 1974.

Significance:
Associated with the BHAS and provision for its employees.

HERITAGE SIGNIFICANCE

Description:
Rendered stone building with arched panels to front elevation. Detailed parapet with dentils, cornice moulding and pediment. Rendered chimneys.

History:
On 5 February 1875, tenders were called for the Port Pirie customs house and residence which was designed by the Colonial Architect (G. T. Light). The tender of Rossiter and Davies of Moonta was accepted at £921.5.1. Built on reclaimed land, it replaced an earlier timber and iron building known as the ‘Camp Oven’. In 1920 the old customs house was reopened by the Hon. R. A. Geddes, MLC, as a museum.

Significance:
Highlights the significance of Port Pirie as one of South Australia's premier ports, one from which produce was exported directly overseas. Built at a time when South Australia was an autonomous state and responsible for collection of customs.

HERITAGE SIGNIFICANCE

Description:
Brick and stone building with ornate verandah with wrought iron decoration (brackets and frieze). Enclosed tower over central roof and smaller cupolas at each end of verandah with flagpoles. Verandah and cupolas roofed in scalloped patterned sheet metal.

History:
In June 1879 the first weatherboard railway station opened at the southern end of Ellen Street. Passengers alighted here although the trains continued along the main street. On 10 October 1900 the Railways Commissioner approved construction of a 'new' Ellen Street railway station, incorporating foundations of an earlier 1886 building. Tenders were called in June 1901 but were considered too high. In August the Commissioner directed that the station be built by departmental labour. It was completed late in 1902 at a cost of £3760.2.10. There does not appear to have been any opening ceremony although the keys were formally handed over to the stationmaster Mr Ross on 1 November 1902. The building was apparently painted in a 'gari' colour scheme which drew some comment from the general public. The building was reopened as a museum for the National Trust by Sir Keith Angas on 28 October 1972.

Significance:
Ornate building of unusual design. Development of silver-lead mining and Port Pirie's significance as a railway terminus for both ore and wheat.

Description:
Rendered two storey stone building with corrugated galvanised iron roof. Three arched openings to front facade with mouldir above. Multi-paned double hung sash windows to first floor. Rendered parapet and pediment with circular opening to central section. Rendered detailing.

History:
The Post Office was built on reclaimed land. The first post office was opened in July 1873 with Nicholas Simons as postmas. A twice weekly service was established between Adelaide and Port Pirie, with provision made for the sale of many orders and telegraphic communication in 1874. Daily service to Adelaide began in 1877. Tenders were called for the Port Pirie Post Office in March 1880. On 27 May 1880 J. Fitzpatrick signed contracts for work on the post office and court house. The building was completed in December of the same year. A verandah canopy was added 1920 and removed 1945.

Significance:
Important building in civic sector of Ellen Street.

HERITAGE SIGNIFICANCE

Description:
Brick and stone single storey structure with porch at front. Rendered quoins and surrounds. Hipped corrugated galvanised iron roof with paired moulded brackets under eaves. Arched double hung sash windows.

History:

In Hearings of the local court were initially held in a room of the Port Pirie Hotel. In April 1880 tenders were called for the construction of the Port Pirie court house. The building was completed in January 1881 by J. Fitzpatrick who was also working on the post office. Described in late 1880 as comprising 'a court room 45' x 24' x 8' high, with raised platforms, jury and prisoners boxes, front porch, magistrate's room and clerks office, each 18' x 14'.' This building is the present customs house for Port Pirie and has been since November 1963. This new customs house exchanged for the old at 69 Ellen Street. The last building erected 1875 is now a museum. A toilet block at the rear (1964) is totally at variance with the original building.

Significance:
Reflected an increase in demand for legal proceedings, later converted to customs house. Streetscape value in civic sector Ellen Street.

Description:
Two storey coursed sandstone construction with single storey addition to rear. Symmetrical facade with balcony and verandah with timber posts decorated with cast iron lacework brackets and balustrading. Corrugated galvanised iron hipped roof. Rendered brick quoins and surrounds. Brick chimney and gabled corrugated galvanised iron roof to extension.

History:
In 1906 a block of land was transferred to the Barrier Wharf Company for £100.9.8. Within six months the company undertook to erect buildings for offices and stores so constructed that a pay window shall be placed on the western side of the building. Architect J. F. Jenkins commenced practice in Port Pirie 1898. He used the building for his offices until 1913 and may have designed the building. At one stage owned by the Barrier Wharf Company and used as harbourmaster's office. The building was sold to Department of Marine & Harbours in April 1922 and was used for two years from 1930 as temporary offices for the Department of Community Welfare.

Significance:
Only remaining example of a commercial waterfront building in the town. Integrity is high. Construction reflects success of Port as an outlet for mining products from the 'Barrier Range.'

Description:
Coursed stonework building with gabled roof. Brick capping to gable and brick quoins and surrounds. Pointed arched windows have been filled in to cater for modern shopfront. Pointed arched vents to gable ends. Ornament to corners above quoins.

History:
Bicycles were a popular form of transport in Port Pirie before the major influx of motor cars in the 1950s. Bike shops such as Frank Pullman's (at 88 Florence Street) and Wellington Cycle Works were a common occurrence. The original owner of Wellington Cycle Works was Thornley Wellington who was the Port Pirie dealer for A. G. Healing Ltd., builders of Healing cycles. When he left in 1939 to join the Methodist Home Mission Department at Lucindale and later the Congregational Mini, Thomas Fuller became manager of the 'Malvern Star Cycle Store' in Ellen Street, two shops north of Mary Elie Street. This store is apparently a continuation of this business.

Significance:

HERITAGE SIGNIFICANCE
Description:

History:
Captain B. Williams (harbourmaster) was the prime mover in the formation of a Congregational Church in Port Pirie. In April 1874 land in Florence Street was bought for £45. In 1876 a tender was let for a wooden building to cost £240. Services meanwhile were held in the Institute. The congregation soon became too large for the wooden building. In September 1878 a foundation stone was laid for a more substantial stone building by Reverend R. W. Fletcher. The stone mason was Charles Taylor, carpenter George Cruickshank, ironmaker J. G. Lewis, and painter John McLeod. The building was opened in February 1879. An addition to the front of the building was completed in August 1900. The internal entrance porch was built in 1977.

Significance:
First stone church in Port Pirie, a streetscape landmark.

Description:
Two storeyed building of coursed stuccoed sandstone rubble construction with covered balcony and verandah with paired posts. Cast iron lace decoration. Semicircular fanlight over central doors is repeated in the central bay of the verandah. Pediment with classical trimmings. Random rubble side walls. Two shopfronts.

History:
The Amalgamated Workers Association was formed in the late 1800s and the need for adequate headquarters was felt early this century. The foundation stone was laid in October 1911 by the Hon. John Verran. The building was the headquarters of the Amalgamated Workers' Association whose members in Port Pirie had contributed 2d each per week towards the building fund. The Waterside Worker's Federation took over the building not long after it was completed. A cooperative store and bakery were set up in the ground floor of the building and rooms and hall were on the first floor.

Significance:
Development of labour unions in Port Pirie, particular significance of waterside workers. Streetscape value.

HERITAGE SIGNIFICANCE
Description:
Random coursed stone church with rendered quoins and surrounds and plinth. Hood mouldings over pointed arched window and doors. Gabled corrugated galvanised iron roof with rendered gable end with vent. Porch entrance at front. The church is incomplete as there is an iron wall at the rear.

History:
The first St Pauls was built in 1876 of timber and measured 7.6 x 10.7m. Extensions to this building were made in 1878 to include chancel, vestry, organ recess, porch and belfry. A new church was designed, built and dedicated in 1898. W. K. Mallyon, the architect (and also manager of the National Bank at Port Pirie) was responsible for the design of more than 30 churches in South Australia. The foundation stone was laid on 17 August 1899 by the Bishop of Adelaide, J. R. Harmer. The building was never completed, although features some elaborate details, heavy hammer beams, and unusual narthex porch which was to have been the vestry. The building contains four Mallyon memorials—lectern, standard lights, processional and pulpit. Mallyon's designs were practical, adapted to the availability of building materials and local needs. For St Paul's he suggested use of cane seats 'which were more adapted to the exigencies of a hot climate than the old fashioned pews.'

Significance:
An example of Mallyon's work, reputedly to be the best of his churches. Religious development, streetscape character on corner site.

HERITAGE SIGNIFICANCE

Description:
Brick and stone single storey house with corrugated galvanised iron roof. Bullnosed return verandah with gablets and finials. Verandah is paved with tiles. Widow's walk and verandah decorated with cast iron. Stained glass to some windows. Double hung sash windows. Rendered chimneys. Concrete block addition to rear.

History:
Edward Moyie (born 1862), son of W. H. Moyle who established an aerated water and butter factory, was also in the business. In 1909 he completed the mansion in Florence Street (builder A. H. Smerdon). A feature was a very large aviary which was stocked with birds from Malaya, East Indies, China and Australia. The stained glass windows were imported from Germany. The house was sold by the Moyles in 1923 and has changed hands several times.

Significance:
One of the more substantial homes of Port Pirie built for one of its more prominent citizens. Highlights Port Pirie's prosperity from Broken Hill. Lessened somewhat by proximity of Coca Cola factory.

Description:
Built of coursed Napperby stone the H-plan symmetrical two storey building has a balcony and verandah between gabled wings. Rendered plinth and decorative window surrounds with keystones. Pressed metal ceiling to verandah, cast iron balustrade and frieze. Corrugated galvanised iron roof (with crosses as finials to gables).

History:
Members of the order of Sisters of the Good Samaritan came to Port Pirie in January 1890. Constructed of Napperby stone the original building consisted of 14 rooms including reception rooms, classrooms and refectories. The foundation stone was laid in 1889 and the school was opened on 18 May 1890. There were 12 boarders and 37 high school and 120 primary school day students. A new school was built in 1940 and this building was used for convent accommodation.

Significance:
Association with educational and charitable services offered by Catholic church in South Australia. Rare example of early institutional building in Port Pirie.

HERITAGE SIGNIFICANCE

Description:

Cruciform plan rendered stone building. Gabled terracotta tiled roof. Central rose window in gabled facade. Triple circular arches to entrance doors surrounded by a colonnade of arches.

History:

Port Pirie's first Roman Catholic church was St Mark the Evangelist, built in 1875. The second St Marks was a Romanesque building built in 1882 and gutted by fire in 1946. The present church was built on the site of the old, incorporating some of the fabric of the earlier building. Remaining walls were extended 10' using local freestone, gables were extended, the front porch was removed and replaced with a colonnade of arches. The builder responsible for the restoration work was L O'Loughlin of Adelaide. Tabernacle and candlesticks from the burnt cathedral were restored and placed in the new church. The new cathedral was blessed and opened by Cardinal Gilroy on 29 March 1953. The cathedral gallery now houses pipe organ formerly in the Elder Hall, University of Adelaide.

Description:
Asymmetrical two storey painted stone building with brick quoins and surrounds. Arched windows. The building originally had corrugated galvanised iron roof and raked balcony and verandah.

History:
In 1884 the Port Pirie Fire Brigade was established with a permanent foreman and 3 auxiliary firemen. By 1886 equipment of the fire brigade included 1 hand reel, 480' of hose, 2 ladders, 2 standpipes, 4 spanners, 2 canvas buckets, 1 axe, 1 firebell and 4 sets of uniforms. Port Pirie Council let a contract for the building of the fire station in 1891. Built by Messrs Scotcher and Beer for £1,323 the station was opened in March 1902. Burgess described the building in 1909: 'The building in which the fire brigade is housed is characteristic in its appearance, its arrangements are on the most approved model, and its appliances, including steamer and chemical apparatus, up to date.'

Significance:
Community services in Port Pirie. Significance reduced by fire damage in 1989.

Description:
Gable ended brick building with corrugated galvanised iron roof. Louvred vent to gable end. Large paned windows and basement lights.

History:
Industrial and manufacturing ventures in the town were relatively small (in comparison with the BHAS works) as there was only a local market to supply. Compton soap works had a large part of the market 1 1/2 miles southwest of the port. Whitelaws also relied on the pastoral industry, manufacturing by products to supply the local market.

Significance:
Remaining industrial structure not associated with BHAS. Association with surrounding pastoral industry.

HERITAGE SIGNIFICANCE

Description:
Admiralty anchor mounted on stone plinth on concrete base.

History:
In 1845 the schooner 'John Pirie' anchored at Pirie Creek. Pastoralists in the hinterland saw the river as the most convenient spot for shipping out sheep and wool. John Pirie was one of the directors of the South Australian Company. The ship was built in 1827 by the Aberdeen shipbuilder Alexander Hall. The anchor was lost and recovered off Aldinga. The schooner was wrecked in Bass Strait.

Significance:
Remains of first ship in the Port Pirie creek.

HERITAGE SIGNIFICANCE

Description:

History:

A cottage hospital was opened in Port Pirie in 1891. Burgess described the hospital in 1919: "The hospital buildings are not architecturally impressive...They consist of a group of single storeyed houses connected by verandahs and covered paths and contain about 40 beds.

Significance:

Importance due to work related accidents. The remains of the original hospital have been demolished.

Description:

History:
August Conrad Rohrsheim and his wife opened a bakery in the town in 1899. By 1939 his company had been baking bread in Port Pirie for 40 years and was serving more than 1600 customers and employing about 32 people. In 1940 the company changed name from August Conrad Rohrsheim to Rohrsheim's Ltd. In Pirie they opened a bakery on Seventh Street and in 1901 moved to a six roomed house in York Road which had a shop and bake house with cast iron ovens (see Item 186).

HERITAGE SIGNIFICANCE

Description:

History:

Ray Bairstow arrived in Port Pirie in the early 1900s and became a labourer and subcontractor for Smerdon & Co., builders. In 1910 he established his own earthmoving business, supplying the smelters. He had 13 children. He became interested in building as a hobby and on his own built this skating rink and commenced a second rink. He was also responsible for several other buildings in the area including a group of houses (Item 254) and old peoples' home, which was never completed (Item 255).

HERITAGE SIGNIFICANCE
Description:
Two storey building with roof top observatory. Balcony and verandah with timber posts and lace balustrading. Infill to section of first floor balcony. Rendered quoins and surrounds and chimneys. Corrugated galvanised iron roof. Double hung sash windows, sidelights and fanlight to main entrance.

History:
Known as the Rising Sun Hotel from 1896-1900 (owing to its view towards the east and the Flinders Ranges). The hotel was built on reclaimed land on a tributary of the Dead Horse Creek. Licensees were faced with a problem with installing cellars which were often below water level, and it was necessary to install pumps to keep the premises from flooding. The Federal was recognised as a workingman's pub due to its location amid heavy industries.

HERITAGE SIGNIFICANCE

Description:

History:
The stonemason was probably Thomas Wickham. Extensions were built c. 1887 as the north section of the main building. Later the remainder of main building and at same time infant school building. Tender accepted in the Port Pirie Gazette on 24 November 1876. The first part of the school was the present library building, completed in 1877. While the school was being built the front room of a house in First Street, near the school, was used. Earlier at least 4 private schools were operating. The school was opened in August 1877. By 6 May 1877 Inspector Mr Alexander Mark, noted 199 children present. Additional class rooms were added about 10 years after original building.

HERITAGE SIGNIFICANCE

Description:
Rendered concrete house with hipped corrugated galvanised iron roof extending to raked verandah on rendered pillars. Double hung sash windows.

History:
Ray Bairstow arrived in Port Pirie in the early 1900s and became a labourer and subcontractor for Smerdon & Co., builders. In 1910 he established his own earthmoving business, supplying the smelters. He had 13 children. He became interested in building as a hobby and on his own built 16 concrete and stone houses in Palmer Street, most with stone fences and garages. He was also responsible for several other buildings in the area including the skating rink (Item 189) and old peoples’ home, which was never completed (Item 254).

HERITAGE SIGNIFICANCE

Description:
Rendered concrete brick construction, unfinished.

History:
Commenced by the builder Ray Bairstow, who had constructed several other buildings in the area (see Items 188 and 255). This was to be his biggest project, a group of three buildings to provide accommodation, a staff house and recreation area for the aged. Unfortunately it was never completed.

HERITAGE SIGNIFICANCE

Description:
Rendered stone house, now incorporated as part of a two storey cream brick building.

History:
Built by Mr Scrutton a timber merchant for his own use. Built of bricks it has (had?) a foundation stone laid in the front section with papers and documents enclosed (nr front bay window). In 1888 purchased by Mr Fred Grey. Inside the doors and beams are of cedar. It was the first house of substance built in Port Pirie. 1972 altered and built around in cream brickwork for a nursing home.
