Ransom's Corner

This row of adjoining shops typifies the 1920's style of shop building with stepped in doorway and tiles around the base of the windows. Today the original owner's name proudly graces the facade of the building and barely hints at the Ransom families' affect on this corner of Beulah Park. The original shop and house once stood where the service station next door stands. Old Mrs. Eliza Ransom was midwife in the district, besides running the shop, her father was a bootmaker and her husband, Robert A. Ransom built the new block on the corner, extending an important social and service centre for the community.
There were numerous shopkeepers over the years, but one name 'Clement', the butcher, would be remembered by at least two generations of locals.

Description: This large freestone villa with red brick coins, return verandah, wooden freeze and finials on all gables, was built by Frederick Johns (1868-1932), journalist and biographer. He was born in U.S.A., worked for the Advertiser, the S.A. Register (for 30 years) and lead the newly formed Hansard staff from 1914 for the rest of his life. Johns is also known for the biographical dictionary published in 1906 Johns notable Australians revived later in 1922 as Who's Who in the Commonwealth of Australia and in 1927 as Who's Who in Australia.
In 1908-1909 he requested that the Council change the name of the street from the "Parade" to Alexandra Avenue, after Queen Alexandra.

Description: First creek crossed the tip of the N.E. corner of Prescott farm. From the creek a store of water was channelled into Prescott's land.
At the turn of the century this whole area was flat wheat fields pitted with stone quarries and wells. From 1912 the suburb of Toorak Gardens began to develop and with this drainage reserves like the one running between Alexandra and Watson Avenues were mapped into the subdivision and maintained by council.

Description: Original coachhouse to BENACRE built 1844 i.e. Benacre Coachhouse.
This two storey bluestone building (stone from Glen Osmond) with sandstone quoins and detailing was formerly part of the Benacre estate. The gabled flanking wings and the first floor pediment with cast iron balcony beneath create a notable design. It is one of the more important early coachhouses in the area.

Description: This late 1920's bungalow was built for H.E.S. Melbourne, engineer for the Burnside City Council. Melbourne is remembered by Council for his innovative thinking in relation to the works programme, planning ahead and cutting costs at a time of monetary restraint, allowed council to move with the times.

Description: This area was subdivided in 1879 from Frederick Howard's farm.
The group of buildings are attractive and remain relatively unaltered. Built of bluestone, the house adjoining the shop is symetrical in plan with verandah and built by N.S. Kenner. The shop of brick construction still operates as such and retains its brown glazed tiles around the base of the windows. However the original shop was of stone. What stands today is probably a newer building of the 1920's , though the bread bakery and original shop came together in 1883-84 under the name John Nelson. In 1944-45 the Directory has A.W. Ralph, baker, as occupier at this address.

Description: This single fronted sandstone cottage has been restored and extended with character. The wood work has been stripped back and windows have attractive garden aspects. As with cottages 216, 218, 220, 222, 224 & 226 the facades are sandstone and sides red brick with hedder rows. It was built after the Amery Subdivision in 1881, on a long narrow block, backing onto a service lane. The first owner was Miss Doorne and it then passed to A.A. Kirkpatrick (J.P.), Edith Fry, E.G. Stallard, W.G. Ellis, & R. Twiss.
This was yet another rental cottage so shelterd many occupiers over the years from gardeners to cabinet makers, drivers to plasterers.

Description: At the present site of the Woodley Cellars built in 1900 an older cellar was built in 1862. The lower storey of this original cellar was excavated into the hill at the mouth of one of the old levels of the silver/lead mine. It is assumed that level mentioned is the existing level known as Queen Victoria Drive. The reason for the erection of the cellar at the tunnels' entrance was the continual draught of air through the cellar.
Woodley's Cellars still have this advantage of cooling from the old mine workings. This shaft leads into the tunnel mentioned above.

was erected on this site, 99 years ago, by Charles Bennett.   In 1915 Charles retired leaving the industry to William Charles and Arthur. William bought out Arthur and the name changed from "Charles Bennett & Sons" to "William C.
Bennett". Both in 1940 and 1956 fires destroyed the buildings and in 1956 the rebuilding was of one storey only and of solid masonry.

Description: The foundation stone of this former Congregational Church was laid in 1914, by Sir Edwin Smith. The building was opened in April 1915 and the Contractor was H.E. Shepherd for a price of £680. The building of freestone was finished with cement dressings and measured 50ft. x 30ft. inside. A division wall provided a vestry and kindergarten 30ft. x 15ft. The front porch measured 10ft. x 7ft. The ceiling of 3 ply was stained and made a striking contrast to the white walls. A gift of £100 by Sir Edwin Smith nearly met the cost of furnishings. The total cost including land, building, furnishings and organ equalled £950.   The honorary pastor was the Minister of the Clayton Church, the Rev. A.H. Teece. In 1922 the Church was underpinned and a hall was built and declared open in February 1923 for £291.

            The Institute of Quarrying Foundation Aust. Division   1917

Monument established to mark the approximate location of the 1st commercial quarrying in the S.A. mainland. In 1838 the Quarry was operating for the extraction of flagstone for building purposes. The plaque is mounted on similar stone as was quarried. In memory of James Grylls (quarryman) and the Burnside District Council for their part in the event.
Part of the Supreme Court was built of this stone.
Unveiled by Mr. Brian Fish, Executive Director of the Institute of Quarrying, November, 1975.

Description: The original property was built as 'The Waldrons' by Henry DeMole in 1856 for his mother Mrs. Isabel DeMole.
Frederick Sison, brewer owned if for a short time 1873-75, then known as 'Moorcroft'.
It was John Stuart Sanders, importing grocer, who purchased it in 1875-89 took great care of the garden and added to the creek a bridge and two artificial lakes. Creek stones dislodged were built to form a wall around the estate.
A hand made concrete tombstone was found by Burnside Council Workers in the private bridge area, it read - WHITE Alice Maude b 13 March 1841 AD
                                     died at birth
'White' could read as 'Waite'. Searches in government departments could shed no light on this discovery.

Description: Built as a stone house of 6 rooms. The chimneys are solid and attractive with a small amount of moulding, but the bay window is plain with unusually small windows. Perhaps it was added, as it appears to have been constructed of brick, as does the lower approximate 2 feet of the house.
This may have been part of salt damp treatment.
It appears much of the trimming has been altered.

Description: This single fronted stone and brick cottage built for Fred Lewis appears to have taken 3 years to build. The whole of this street is unusual in that there are houses on the one side only - and mostly single fronted cottages. The street remains in tact and council has brick paved and landscaped to good effect, along the unhoused side.
Passing occupiers of this cottage have been J. Goodale, J. Lobb, J. Helleway, F.C. Richardson, Mrs. Susan Hallett (dressmaker), M. Brennan, E.J. Couch, E.A. Lynch (conductor) and Mrs. A.J. Wilson.

Description: No. 1 & 3 were owned originally by the same person, Fred Lewis.
The single fronted stone and brick cottage began on Lot 24 as a 2 roomed brick cottage. It is one of a row of cottages. The other side of the narrow street are iron fences - the backs of other properties. Council has brick paved the street and landscaped against the fences to good effect. The cottage has seen many occupiers.

Description: This is a tidy symetrical bluestone cottage, built as 2 rooms, but increased to 3. The original owner/occupier for many years was William Fulstone. There were numerous later occupiers, but the longest standing from the 1940's has been Trimper and Smith - the latter still being owner today.

Description: Single fronted three roomed stone cottage built in the early 1880's. Much of this building on the inner streets of Eastwood was a direct response to the building of the Lunatic Asylum in Parkside. It was low cost housing for groundsmen, attendants, labourers, artisans and other small business people.
The land belonged to John Hogg, but it is uncertain if he in fact built it.
S. Knapton owned it for many years and it passed to A.W. Knapton (engineer), in the early 1900's.

was a direct affect of erection of the Lunatic Asylum at Parkside. It was low cost housing for groundsmen, attendants, labourers, artisans and other small business people.
No. 3 then sold to R. Barkley. At the turn of the century Charles Chalk purchased it, occupied it for a short time, but then rented it out to people like warder, Thomas Ryan and farmer John Ford. Chalk was still owner in the mid 1930's.

Description: This large bluestone house of eight rooms with extensive verandah was built for Charles Howitt as was no. 18. However he lived for a more considerable time in this dwelling – from 1883-84 to at least 1927, but did not own it in the later part of this period. Miss C. Castine occupied the house after Charles Howitt for over 30 years.

Description:.   Stonyfell house began as a three roomed cottage of creek stones and sawn timber with a date of 1838 over the door.
It was probably built by Richard Borrow for his head quarryman, as he himself was living in town.
The 1853 Council Assessment show Richard Borrer, stone house partly built £25 and the following year it was a 4 roomed stone house £48.
John Hallett rented it before moving into Illfracombe and then Henry Clark and his partner Joseph Crompton.
The house remained with the Crompton family until 1978.

Description: This bluestone construction was built by Miss Mary Field and known originally as Shady Brook - substantial house of 6 rooms, besides pantry, large cellar, dairy and outhouses. An additional storey was built by Wm. J. Coote (1878-1909) who adopted the name "Finnissbrook" (the original Finnissbrook became Willowbank, but stood where the Church of St. John Vianney now stands.) Later this storey was dismantled.

from F.A. Paterson.
The earliest sighting in the rate books appears to be in 1902-03 when Scrymjein owned and Samuel Lee occupied two premises at £14 and £16 annual value each. A little later Samuel Lee owned the property for at least a further 10 years. By 1914 Paterson owns the shop with three other occupants, Loung War, Seon Lee and J. Hill.

Description: This row of three attached shops is dated at 1878 (the photograph below includes attached no. 39 a double storey shop and attached house.) Number 35 & 37 had stone and brick dwellings at the rear, each of two rooms, while number 33 was a shop only. Johanna Perrot originally operated all the shops as one store, but sold to H.T. Jones in 1879 and he made them into separate shops by walling up the interconnecting archways. Stanilslaw Duluk made it one again, joined with number 39.
Some storekeepers and residents have been Henry Tature, Mrs. Wilke, W. Ling, Wm. Hooper, McFarlane and Newcombe, J. Hanlon, Kaiser, D'Nesi Giovani, P. Cranna, F. Desbury, R. Fieb, Cullin, Wing, Mrs. Gray, Frank Gooly, O. Parry, Ronald Henning and S. & D. Duluk.
Services offered at these shops were laundry, tobacconist, cycle works, grocer, general stores, dressmaking, bootmaker.

Description:

The 2 storeyed shop and dwelling with its balcony spanning the footpath is the eastern-most structure in the line at number 39 Glen Osmond Road. A two-roomed wood and mud (pisé) house was built here in 1876 and John Thomas Williams , the owner-occupier, was one of the pioneer settlers of Glen Osmond Road, Eastwood. Two years later he replaced the hut with a two-roomed stone and brick house and shop with a horse paddock alongside. He sold out to H.T. Jones in 1880 and he rebuilt the place into the two-storey structure that we see today. Mrs Jones operated the shop for a year and after her Henry Rowe, A. Tordren and Herman Weste who became the first store-keeper after H.T. Jones died (1884/5) and agents had taken control of the properties. The shop has always been a grocery shop and early in the present century it became the first shop in the suburb to sell cool drinks. It became very run down about this time and had a reputation as a rough place. As such it did not get much business until new tenants moved in and imp roved the image of the place. Weste was here from 1885 to 1891 when William White took over but it failed to hold any storekeepers for long as the following list of tenants from 1892 to 1960 proves: Mrs White, W. and A. Howe, J Hillson, P. Beams, P. Burns (1900-1910), Mrs. Burns, Miss J. Burns, Miss Agnes Burns, A.E. Swinburne, J.A. Barrett, H.C. Stoneman, 1921-1934 not known, Harry Houghton, Hedley J. Milton (1935-50), Claude Tully and Stanislaw Duluk who bought the shop in 1958. He improved the shop's image and did a great deal of publicity, expanding the shop from the conventional form to a small supermarket through into three of the adjoining shops. Duluk and his family operated the shop for over 25 years.

HERITAGE SIGNIFICANCE RECOMMENDATION: Local

Description: It appears that this building was erected as a stone house of five rooms by Stephen Impett in the early 1880's. Though this is not certain at the time of writing the 1899 Directory lists W.Gloz, watchmaker and fruitier and 1902 H.W. Mathews, newsagency, 1905 A.W. Egan, storekeeper, and 1910 Percy Penley, butcher and baker, as occupying this property.
Judging by the appearance of the building the shop may have been added later than the original building date, however the front window of the house does not appear to be an 1880's style, but more one of the 1890's.

Description: This row of four attached shops and residences was built in 1884 by John Hogg and was his largest public building. It has been renovated in recent years but appears to have maintained its original appearance, including the fine balcony balustrade and parapet. There have been many occupiers over the years, ranging from bootmaker to draper, general storekeeper to watchmaker.

Description: The old baking room (1910) off Bower Lane, at the rear of Hank's Bakery, still contains a wood burning oven big enough to hold 25 trays each holding six loaves at a time. It is now used as a storeroom and a depot for covering newspapers with protective plastic wrap prior to delivery. The old home was built in 1879 as a symetrical stone house of five rooms for T. Dunn. The shop, no. 81, was added in 1910.

Description: A Sunday School started sometime in 1879 in a little wooden building in Moar Street. Plans of the Church were drawn up by Mr. E. Gould, and a contract let to Mr. J. Leahy for £350. The Foundation Stone was laid Monday May 31st 1880. Sir Samuel Way (Chief Justice), Dr. A. Campbell (M.L.C.) laid the corner stones. (Rev. J. Raymont and Mr. E. Gould acted as proxies.) The mallet used for laying the foundation stone was the same one used by Prince Alfred when on a visit to S.A.).
The opening service was held on August 1st 1880.   The Church was closed in 1960 after uniting with Parkside Epworth Church, and is now owned by Burnside Council and used as a Community Centre.

Goldsack owner/occupier, section 270 Glen Osmond; Brick cottage of four rooms ₤12.10. By the mid 1880's the additions in stone were made to give it its present appearance. It was then in the name of 'Goldsack Brothers', blacksmiths of Glen Osmond. Mrs. F.J. Buxton occupied the house in the 1930-50's.
Mark Goldsack was one of Redman Goldsack's three sons trained in the smithing business. He married Mary, daughter of Daniel Ferguson of Glenunga, who gave him seven sons. Mark Goldsack was also a Justice of the Peace, councillor and chairman of the Burnside District Council from 1877-81 and a serving member of numerous civil and religious bodies.

Description: In 1863-64 J. Langley occupied a two roomed stone cottage owned by Redman Goldsack. By 1867-68 Langley had purchased this cottage and the following year it had three rooms and a workshop. John Glover Langley worked as carpenter for Redman Goldsack, but in 1868 set up on his own next door, specializing as a carpenter only. Under J. Langley & Son this grew to carpenter and builder and much later - plumber. The Langley's are still in business in Glen Osmond today.

HERITAGE SIGNIFICANCE RECOMMENDATION: Local

Description: Symetrical stone house of 4 rooms does not have the popular verandah and iron work, but a small shelter over the front door. On a double lot, set amongst trees, it has been maintained attractively. A.L. Harvey, painter, owned and occupied the house for over 35 years. It is now owned and occupied by Sue Graham, one time councillor for Burnside 1984.

Description: Double fronted bluestone cottage, attractively maintained. It is one of a pair, both extended at the rear, but keeping the front rooms authentically. In recent years both cottages have had matching red brick and iron fences errected which satisfy both needs of privacy and aesthetic aspects of the house.   It was the subdivision of 1877 that designed these allotments as they are today. Both Huddleston and E.A.D. Opie were owners at various times, but exact dating is still inconclusive.

corner of the Erindale Estate and among a backdrop of tall gums a 'gentleman's villa residence' was built.   J.C. Marshall was one of the directors of a drapery firm founded by his father which in 1928 became Myers Limited.   A sale description of the house ... "walls of brick and freestone on massive bluestone foundations, 9 large rooms, 2 maids' bedrooms, bathrooms, kitchen, pantry and cupboards, a gardeners' cottage in the far corner and a tennis court.

Description: Alterations to 'The Waldrons' was made by John S. Sanders, who bought it in 1875. A private bridge was constructed over the creek and a wall of large water worn stones, unearthed when trenching, was built around the property he re named 'Moorcroft'. The garden was further developed as well, creating 2 artificial lakes.

Description: The first sighting we have of this house is in 1853-1854 Rate Books, as a stone house, shed and 5 acres owned by Futcher.
In 1852 Futcher purchased the property, but morgadged it in 1853 suggesting this is when the house was built (he later bought it back).
In 1873-74 the rate books cite it as a 7 roomed stone house for £45.
In 1875 James Archibald the draper purchased it and held it until at least 1924.
There are discrepancies here and only a close scrutiny of the building materials could we make a more definite statement.   The house does appear to have been added to,it sits very low on the land and has at least 2 gables in the /\/\ fashion similar to some of the larger German houses in South Australia.

The house appears to be of the early bungalow variety with a tiled roof of perhaps asbestos. C.B. Cranston was the first occupier owner and carried on a grocery business.

Description: This is an attached stone house with return verandah and entrance gable to the verandah. The wooden posts and freeze are in good condition and this small amount of delicate ornateness, together with the unusual twin square chimney on a high pitched roof, give it character. A distinctive dividing wall can be seen along the roof line of this attached house around which the twin chimney is built. A.C. Hill was the first owner.

Description: This is an attached stone house with return verandah and entrance gable to the verandah. The attractive wooden freeze and verandah posts have not been maintained, as is the case of its pair, number 75. However, the original and unusual chimneys on a steeply pitched roof remain. A distinctive dividing wall runs from the verandah, up to the first twin chimney and across the crest of the roof. A.C. Hill was the first owner.

Description: First Creek crossed the tip of the N.E. corner of Prescott Farm.   From the creek a store of water was channelled into Prescott's Pond.
At the turn of the century this whole area was flat wheat fields, pitted with stone quarries and wells. From 1912 the suburb of Toorak Gardens began to develop, particularly in the 1920's and with this, drainage reserves like the one running from Grant to Alexander Avenues were mapped into the subdivision and maintained by Council.

Description: This stone house with extensive verandah is situated on the N.E. corner of Section 296. The land was purchased for £115 by George Milner Stephens, barrister, who sold it in 1853 to John Fullerton Cleland.
It passed through various hands between 1880 and 1906, when it was bought by Alfred H. Bryson, who built the present house in the midst of an olive grove which he and his son Alfred planted. They then set up an oil press on the property. His daughter Mrs. Miles lived in it after he and his wife died.

Description: Large stone house of seven rooms owned by Frank Olifant, and built no later than 1880-81, but possibly earlier. Mary Shierlaw purchased it at the turn of the century, but rented it to E.B. Colton for a time.
By 1920 the wine merchant F.W. Ralph had bought the property and occupied it to well into the 1930's. The Directory lists J.J. Duncan (grazier) as occupying the house from the 1940's to the present time.

HERITAGE SIGNIFICANCE RECOMMENDATION: Local

Description: The history of this property goes back to the 1850's when John Scott Young, Merchant of Adelaide, built a single storey house in the colonial style. It also included 16 acres around it. In 1868 J.W. Hocart, merchant, purchased it, put the top storey on it and named it Hautville. The Robilliard family later occupied it. As with many large properties over time, sale and subdivision has often been the way, Hautville house was no exception.
Adelaide Development Company purchased most of the land and transferred it to the Electricity Trust of South Australia. In 1962 it built the tallest office block on Greenhill Road.

HERITAGE SIGNIFICANCE RECOMMENDATION: Local Francis Clark bought property in the early 1850's and the family occupied it until 1910. It had always been used as a picnic ground.
Description: "Hazelwood Park, which is one of the older National Pleasure Resorts, has an area of 31 acres, and was purchased in June, 1914. Its subsequent dedication as a National Pleasure Resort took place on July 15, 1915.
This area then known as 'Hazelwood' or 'Clark's Paddock', was offered to the Government for purchase with the provise that the land was to be kept for a public park, and the name 'Hazelwood' retained in perpetuity.
After the 1914-18 War a pavilion with pergolas was erected on the reserve as a war memorial. The Tourist Bureau undertook the construction of the basement of this building, and the Burnside Memorial for Fallen Soldier's Committee completed the structure, which was handed over to the Government free of debt on April 10, 1921.
From March to December 1942 (during World War II) the reserve was closed to the public, as the military authorities, during that period, took over control of the area which was used as a military training camp." Burnside Council was given control of the Park in 1964 and in October 1966 The George Bolton Swim Centre was opened in the park.

Description: It is still not conclusive that the bluestone lodge was constructed in 1873-74.   This is when we first site it in the rate books, so it was definitely there by then, but as the rate increase was only £5.0.0 and there were other 'outbuildings' noted much earlier, it may have been built earlier and not recognised as a lodge. The researcher would still support 1873-74.

Description: As Linden was built in 1866, it is not likely that the trees were planted before this date. However, photographs show many substantial trees growing in the later part of the 19th century. It is likely they were planted between 1866 and 1880's, given the size of the trees today and what we know of the property.

Description: Large bluestone house with bay window and verandah on two sides.
The land was subdivided in 1882. This block was bought by Mr. & Mrs. Duncan McLaren. It was sold after their deaths to William Strawbridge in August 1901.
Strawbridge was the sixth Surveyor-General of S.A., and his wife and daughter were talented painters. After the death of the Strawbridge parents, it was sold to John Welch in 1920 (retired farmer).
The house was possibly, even probably, built by Dennison Clark or the Booths.

HERITAGE SIGNIFICANCE RECOMMENDATION: Local

Description: There is no council record of the building of this wall but as it is part of the Old Greenhill Road, which was used well back to the bullock wagon days, we can probably assume it was built quite early to prevent some of the many fatal accidents with carts and animals careering over the edge, unable to break the load on such a steep decline.

HERITAGE SIGNIFICANCE RECOMMENDATION: Local

Description: It was at the turn of the century that the front entrance moved first to the side and emphasis was given to roof shape. Here we have a lined sandstone villa, with return verandah revealing simple wooden lattice with more ornate verandah posts. A port hole window is on the front facing wall.
Jessie Addison, manager of Elder Smith & Co., was the first owner of this house.

Owner now: BENNETT P.A.

HERITAGE SIGNIFICANCE RECOMMENDATION: Local

Description: This freestone villa with porthole window, wooden freeze around return verandah with semi enclosed corners, was built in the early 1900's. The front entrance, like no. 14, was built off centre giving more emphasis on roof shape. The house was in the name of Alford (Manager of Dreyfus & Co.) for over 50 years.
