ITEM No.
DOCKET No.

HERITAGE SIGNIFICANCE

This early complex contains several timber framed and mud buildings in almost original condition and is an outstanding example of an early German style farm. Land near Nuriootpa was held by Matthias Lange in 1846 and J.F. Lange in 1850 and the present farm is believed to date from this very early period of development of the Nuriootpa area.

ITEM NAME: Penfolds Winery Complex
Former or other

ITEM No.
DOCKET No.

HERITAGE SIGNIFICANCE

Penfolds established their large winery at Nuriootpa in 1911, under an agreement with local growers, guaranteeing a minimum price in return for a certain tonnage of grapes each year. Winery was completed in 1912, and distillery in 1913.

The winery heralded a departure in design, as it was more factory-like in appearance than any before. It was designed for a large volume of production and covered a large area, and most buildings were on one level "... to do away with the old-fashioned method of building the wine cellars on the hill ..." Further expansion has been in similar style.

HERITAGE SIGNIFICANCE

August Riedel, a bootmaker, at Nuriootpa, was one of the town's earliest residents and tradesmen. The trade was carried on into the twentieth century by his son, Gustav. The Riedel family settled in Nuriootpa in 1863, building the house and shop at that time.

It is one of the few surviving early buildings of Nuriootpa and its curious design with massive columns and turrets, probably added later make it a landmark in the main street.

ITEM NAME: Krieg Brickworks and Chimney
Former or other

Office Use
ITEM No.
DOCKET No.

HERITAGE SIGNIFICANCE

Gustav Krieg who came from Silesia, established the Nuriootpa Brickyard (later known as Krieg's Brickyard) in 1881. As the suitable clay at the site was only about a foot thick, after its use he replaced the overburden and established a vineyard. This production of wine as well as bricks has been described as "one of the rarest combinations ever likely to be encountered in Australian industry". A vineyard now completely occupies the pug hole site.

The brickmaking business rapidly grew as there was a considerable local demand, in particular from the wineries at Angaston, Seppeltsfield and Tanunda.

The circular chimney stack with spiralling polychrome bricks appears to date from the early period of the brickyard's development. The chimney has long been a landmark in Nuriootpa. The steel bracing dates from 1954, when the chimney cracked during the earthquake. The domed down-draught kilns replaced the original square kilns. Both domed kilns and chimney appear in a 1911 photograph.

The brickworks is still owned by the Krieg family and has continued to meet the constant local demand for clay building products.

HERITAGE SIGNIFICANCE

The pug cottage was built by the Scholz family in 1844-5 and added to later in stone and brick. However, the period of major building (incorporating the cottage) was in 1883 when Wilhelm Scholz, a physician and surgeon established the hospital known as "Willows Private Hospital". This he maintained at his own expense, with no outside funding for "pauper patients". The hospital could accommodate 30 patients and probably also housed the permanently employed nurses. It was well-known in S.A. and elsewhere for its successes, based largely on massage.

The surrounding land was farmed by the doctor and his family - the house now again is used as a farmhouse. It is still owned by the Scholz family.

HERITAGE SIGNIFICANCE

This early building group contains a number of buildings of high technological interest, constructed of timber, stone and pug and including an early blacksmith shop.

Johann Sporn, a farmer and blacksmith, arrived here in 1846, took up land and carried on with his trade. "He turned out at his shop the first reaping machine in the district, and also various other agricultural implements."

The extensions to the buildings reflect his growing affluence as a farmer (mixed) and his standing as local Councillor for many years.

HERITAGE SIGNIFICANCE

William Salter came to S.A. in 1839 and purchased this land, naming it "Mamre Brook" (Book of Genesis: Mamre) in 1844. Property was at first stocked with cattle, then sheep. First vines were planted in 1859, when Salter and his son Edward founded W. Salter and Son Pty. Ltd., with their first vintage in 1862.

Construction of the original cottage incorporated within the present homestead was 1847 (National Trust). The original homestead was a 6 roomed cottage made from local marble. The chimney of its large baking oven is one feature still intact.

HERITAGE SIGNIFICANCE

These scattered small quarries still contain relics of early lifting gear and a ruined outbuilding.

James Sibley, an orchadist, discovered the marble on his property in the 1870s. A company, formed to quarry the marble dissolved in 1880 and Sibley, then his son, William, carried on the work themselves. The quarries are noted as the source of marble for many of the monuments "to heroes of the Great War", and earlier, for thousands of gravestones. The stairway of Australia House in London was Angaston marble, which was also used in the West Australian Houses of Parliament and the South Australian War Memorial.

The gold mine was discovered by B. Butler and S. Crisp; established in 1904; in 1907 440 tons were treated. The mine went into liquidation in 1907, but the machinery was bought by the owner of the freehold. The company which worked this area after 1907 became the Kalgoorlie Golden Gate Co. in 1908; alluvial and reef gold.

It was flooded in 1911, in 1931 re-opened, closed in 1936. During this period a puddler was erected and a small pump installed at the 40ft. level, the upper workings being repaired.

The hotel was started in 1865, near the overland stock route and main road to Blanchetown. It was completed in 1867 and its appearance is virtually unchanged. The large stables catered for interstate teams. Also Cobb and Co., later Rounsevell's Coaches changed their horses here, on the way to Truro and beyond.

The reception room was used for most social functions until the Institute was built in 1911. Part of the hotel was also used as a "cooler" for prisoners.

ITEM NAME: Stockwell Flour Mill

HERITAGE SIGNIFICANCE

The flour mill has connections with the beginnings of the town of Stockwell. Samuel Stockwell owned the land and subdivided and sold the township allotments in 1854. In 1853 he had purchased another part of the same section with the intention of building a steam flour mill. It was possibly built on the site of a water-powered mill dating from about 1844. The site was chosen for the ready water supply from Stockwell Creek. The mill was completed in 1854, built by J. Kunoth and Edward Clements. Clements was also miller for many years and he bought the mill in 1872.

The wheat was ground by large mill stones, the mill being remodelled in 1890 to the Roller system. It was fuelled by charcoal.

Laucke and Sons purchased the mill in 1951 and have worked it continuously since. This firm has branches from the Barossa to Strathalbyn.

ITEM NAME: Former "Gawler Park" Winery Former or other Gawler River Vineyard			Office Use ITEM No. DOCKET No.
HERITAGE SIGNIFICANCE  The first mention of vines grown on the Gawler Park property was in 1862 established by William Green, the occupier. The stone buildings may have been built c.1863. In 1873 there is the following description in the South Australian Register : "...His two cellars are substantial stone buildings, 60 feet by 30 each, and capable of storing separately 600 hogsheads..."  Wine-making on the property was continued by Samuel and Walter Sage (who also had a winery in Nuriootpa), then by Charles Salter. Salter sold Gawler Park in 1906 and the vineyard was converted to currents by 1910. Two five-roomed cottages were there by 1902.  Gawler Park has continued as a fruit-growing and pastoral concern, the cellars used for storing equipment. In 1929 it was described as one of the show properties of the district, as created by H.L. Hancock and the new owner, A. Thorn.			LOCATION Address Town nr Angaston Postcode Section 421 Hundred Moorooroo County L.G.A. Angaston S.H.P. Region 8 A.M.G. c.1850; c.1900 additions.

The architect was Henry Evans with main additions by G.K. Soward. Once owned by George Fife Angas who bought it in 1851 already built. The homestead was built for Henry Evans, son-in-law of George Fife Angas. Angas was renowned as one of the founders and chief benefactors of South Australia. Lindsay Park, widely regarded as one of South Australia's "stately homes" became Angas' principal residence when he arrived in the Colony in 1851 (the Evans moving to live at Evandale).

The Angas family sold the property in 1965.

Lindsay Park is now a well-known horse stud, owned by a syndicate and run by a manager.

HERITAGE SIGNIFICANCE

Gruenberg was settled in 1853 by Germans from Hahndorf, who built the church in 1864 for £446. The church has typical saddle back spire. It has 2 stones, dated 1864 and 1914.

The 1914 87ft. high tower was erected to honour the 50th jubilee. It houses a bell. The altar is made of Angaston marble. This congregation has retained the custom of using the "Totenbahr" or bier at burials.

Of particular interest is the D.H. Lemke organ which was installed c.1869-1875. This is one of the few Lemke organs in its original site.

The small school (and first church) building (rendered) has typical German external loft entrance. It dates from 1855, when it served as church and school, until 1864.

This small blacksmith shop and residence was built by Ferdinand Benjamin Kraft, Moculta's first blacksmith, in 1867. In 1868 the ownership of the property reverted to the original landowner Abraham Shannon who then leased it to an English blacksmith Eduard Cowland. Cowland conducted a blacksmith business there from 1870 to 1872. The building is particularly interesting for its local vernacular construction techniques, including mud brick.

HERITAGE SIGNIFICANCE

By 1856 German families had settled about Parrot Hill, calling the congregation the Zion Lutheran Church and the locality, Gnadenberg (Mount Grace). The present Gothic-style bluestone church was built largely by voluntary labour in 1860, with red-gum roof beams and originally a thatched roof (replaced by galvanised iron in the 1870s.) The carpenter was E. Graetz, masons were H. Rohrlach and G. Hettner and the work was supervised by A. Binder. Pastor Heinrich Meyer was the first Pastor.

The tower was added in 1904 with a bell cast in the foundry at Apolda, Thuringen (Germany).

The Church was renovated and redecorated in 1920 and in 1953.

ITEM NAME: Moculta House Ruin
Former or other "Teeneeningla"

Office Use
ITEM No.
DOCKET No.

HERITAGE SIGNIFICANCE

This ruinous building was described as "quite the wonder of the district.." in its time. William and Mary Shannon started farming in the area in 1843. Joined by a son, Abraham, in 1853, they extended to 3,000 acres and Abraham built the present house as a substantial two-storied home. He called it "Teeneeningla" but the property became so identified with the district over the years it was long known as Moculta House, its walls dominating the skyline to the north east of the town of Moculta (established by Abraham Shannon in 1865).

Like other major properties this was the focus for extensive plantings and experiments with various types of fruit trees, vines and stock.

The property also included a private school (site only) and the family mausoleum (see separate sheet).

HERITAGE SIGNIFICANCE

The Shannon family started farming in this area in 1843 and became major landholders, also responsible for surveying and selling the township of Moculta. Abraham Shannon, who died in 1875, had intended to build a family mausoleum, having sent to Italy for plans. The polyhedron, a twenty-sided structure, was constructed of cut sandstone with Mintaro slate in 1877. It was built by Eliza Shannon as a memorial for her husband, Abraham, and he was re-buried there, as was his father, William, the original settler (died 1866). Twenty two other family members were also entombed there, from Edwin Shannon (died 1860) to Fannie Fairweather (died 1962). It was built to hold 80. The dome roof was added in the 1930s. The mausoleum is an unusual and finely detailed structure, and is - apart from the ruins of Moculta House - a memorial to the Shannon family.

HERITAGE SIGNIFICANCE

"Apiarists have been operating in the district on a small scale for many years, many of the farmers having a few hives. The honey is predominantly from flowering gums and Salvation Jane.

"Ted Rosenzweig's apiary is claimed to be the oldest known apiary still in operation.

"The hives, which originated in Germany, are known as Berlepsch-Dzierzon and the apiary is the only one of its type in operation in Australia. There are approximately 100 hives in this apiary which have been operated by the Rosenzweig family for over a century.

"The hives, most over 100 years old, are all under cover... They nest on wooden bearer's supported from the roof timbers." This stops attack by ants from the ground while cans of sump oil on each bearer prevents entry from above.

"These unique boxes have a door at the back with the frames suspended vertically." The hives are a permanent fixture, and were built into their present site c.1900, in an open galvanised iron roofed shed. A stone room at one end served as a separating and processing area.
